Support for the upcoming vote on The Report on non-discrimination based on gender and intergenerational solidarity (2008/2118 (INI)
Rapporteur: Anna Záborská

Dear Anna Záborská,

as an authoress of more than 80 books about children and families, I am not only well reputed but best informed about the situation of women and children in a world of growing industries and market interests.

These interests wrongly make believe that children's best is in "industrial families", following the ideas of Marx and Engels, and that women's freedom and worth is based only on work in the sense of earning money.

In fact, freedom of women means freedom of decision and respect for their personal way of life, weather it is the way of family-care or the way of business outside.

Bringing about children and taking care for their well-being as a mother-at-home is work of high worth, dignity and importance for the children themselves, but also for a family friendly society of high intergenerational solidarity and acceptance.

Therefore it finally must be recognized, that children's very best is with their mothers in the privacy of their family, because no professional care ever will be as lovingly and supporting as a mother's care for her own children.

Singles and labourmarkets may be the presence. But future only will come from healthy families and happy children.

Thank you for your political farsightedness!

Yours sincerely,
